

A Graphical Comparison of Inaugural Addresses

Word clouds present the words that appear in a particular document, giving greater emphasis to those words that appear most frequently. They can be a useful tool for identifying the central themes and ideas of a document. Presented below is a word cloud comparison of the inaugural addresses of Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis, delivered on March 4, 1861 and February 18, 1861, respectively.

Lincoln:

Davis:

